EXPERIENCE

Joe is an experienced commercial leader transitioning into the door hardware industry after a decade in the polymer medical-device manufacturing, where he progressed to Chief Commercial Officer for a global business. He excels at bringing regulated, high-reliability products to market and building strong customer relationships. Earlier in his career, he developed technical experience in RFID / UHF event timing systems for major sporting events, including the Great North Run, Ironman and the Beirut Marathon.

WHAT'S YOUR STORY?

In his younger years, Joe was a keen athlete and cultivated a passion for teamwork through active participation in sports, a mindset he has consistently applied to his professional pursuits. He has experience across several industries, predominantly in global sales roles and advanced to a board-level position in the medical device manufacturing sector at a young age, playing a key role in supporting the business through acquisition. This background instilled his attention to detail, enabling him to take products to market by leveraging unique selling points and building customer networks worldwide. Today, he is excited to lead OEM commercial activities in a market that provides essential products and solutions that save lives.

PERSONAL INTERESTS

In his free time, Joe enjoys spending time with this family, music, and Rugby, enjoys time outdoors, and pursues interests in business practises and psychology to understand what motivates people and makes them tick.
