EXPERIENCE

With over five years of experience, Adam joined Allegion UK in 2018. Today, in his role as export development manager, Adam works closely with the export team for Europe and the Middle East. Day to day, Adam spends his time collaborating with distributors and end users whilst coordinating Allegion agents located in the region.

WHAT'S YOUR STORY?

Adam originally trained at university to be a primary school teacher over 25 years ago, before being lured away by other opportunities. For many years, Adam travelled the world whilst working in the railway manufacturing sector, but after deciding he wanted to be closer to home in 2018, he began his journey at Allegion UK. Prior to his current role, Adam was initially focused on developing new and existing relationships with customers in the Southwest and Wales. His responsibilities have since changed as he now works closely with Allegion agents and customers in Mainland Europe and the Middle East.

PERSONAL INTERESTS

Having been a rugby player for over 35 years, Adam maintains a great interest in the sport and follows his local team, Gloucester. Adam also coaches his younger sons at the local rugby club with the hope that they may have a successful career in the sport.
